This is the shooting-gallery which has gained quite a notoriety from having a wooden figure of Guiteau set up as a target.

The gallery was carried on by two brothers, William Sidney Warwick and George J. Warwick. William is eighteen years of age and George twenty-one. About half-past 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon William got out of a hack and entered the gallery. Soon after entering he began shooting at the long-range target for the anusement of the crowd. While thus engaged his brother George came into the gallery through the curtained entrance. The back of the gallery around the target was dark, and William did not see his brother. He pulled the trigger, and at that instant discovered his brother at the other end of the gallery, but it was too late; the hammer fell, and George Warwick dropped on his knees, unconscious, and with a 22-callbre builet in his brain.

Wilkinson-Appointment by the Meeting held Yesterday of a Committee to Ascertain What Can be Done for the Relier of Those Who have Invested in the Company.

To devise a plan by which the benefits of life insurance wight be brought within the reach of all classes has been our study for months—one that should give to the members the most ample security, and at the same time make the premium so light and payable in such surps as searcely to be felt.

And now, after much thought and elem-
